Course Background

An initiative of Dr. Aziz Ahmed, Principal, Dewanhat Mahavidyalaya, West Bengal

Course offered by Department of Sanskrit & History to students across Institutions at DMWB since 2021-22.

Offered at one level:

This course is for anyone who is interested in learning various facets of Human Values, Culture, Citizenship, Rights, and Duties in India (UG).

Objectives:

- To generate awareness about human values and social caring.
- To prepare students for engaging in social service activities that enhance the quality of life for both others and themselves.
- To introduce participants to our rich cultural past
- To make participants aware of the various facets of Ancient Indian Culture.
- To sensitize the students to internalise the qualities of a good citizen, keeping in view the various factors that influence citizenship both from national and international context.
- The course involves nature and explanations of human values, citizenship, mutual aid and collective responsibility, and how values are learnt and realized.

Human Values, Culture, Citizenship, Rights, and Duties in India

There are five stem values and many sub-values or virtues that come from the main values. Together they make up the tapestry that forms an individual character, containing all that makes a human being, noble, caring and kind. India has a rich cultural heritage which was nurtured and nourished over centuries by the different cross-currents of civilizations from all over the world. The Indian constitution guarantees not only certain fundamental rights of Indian citizens, but also emphasizes certain duties and responsibilities that Indian citizens are expected to fulfil.

Report on Add on Course on: Human Values, Culture, Citizenship, Rights & Duties in India

Introduction

The Department of Sanskrit and the Department of History of Dewanhat Mahavidyalaya designed and offered a course on 'Human Values, Culture, Citizenship, Rights and Duties in India', upon the initiative taken by Dr. Aziz Ahmed, Principal of Dewanhat Mahavidyalaya and Dr. Pitas Das, the course Coordinator and Assistant Professor of Sanskrit. The course has 2 credits and a duration of 30 hours. The course is offered to any student interested in gaining an understanding about the diverse aspects of human values as well as Indian culture and how it relates to citizenship and rights and duties as defined by the constitution of India

Objectives of the course

1. The course intends to impart knowledge to the students with multiple facets of ancient Indian culture as well as acquaint them with the rich cultural heritage of India.
2. The students would be made aware of what constitutes human values and the importance of caring about society.
3. The course aims to elucidate the concepts of human values, citizenship, mutual aid and collective responsibility as well as how values are internalised.
4. The course aims to contextualise Indian citizenship with respect to national and international frames of reference, keeping in view various factors that influence citizenship.
5. The course aims to aid students to internalise the qualities of a good citizen
6. The course aims to prepare students to engage in social services that add value and ameliorate the quality of life for those they aid and themselves.

Inauguration of the course:

The course was offered at Dewanhat Mahavidyalaya from 14th May 2022 to 1st June 2022. The course was inaugurated on the 14th of May by the Principal, Dr. Aziz Ahmed who took the primary initiative for the realisation of the course and participated in the course as a resource person. At the inauguration of the course, the Principal, in the presence of all the resource persons, the coordinator and the participating students spoke of the importance of cultivating and inculcating values drawing upon one's civilisational past and splicing it with contemporary values based on the constitution which defines a sovereign democratic republic. The Principal went on to speak of the benefits of the course and how the students would profit from the exercise. His inspirational remarks were enthusiastically applauded and welcomed all in attendance. The Course Coordinator, Dr. Pitas Das thanked the Principal and the resource persons present, welcomed the students and congratulated them for being selected to participate in the course. Dr. Das, then briefly explained the thought process behind the framing of the course and the importance of being rooted to a core set of values drawn from one's civilisational past in a swiftly and persistently transforming technologically mediated world. The course coordinator, then succinctly gave an outline of the course, introduced the resource persons and mentioned the areas they would be covering. Finally, he rendered the vote of thanks and concluded the session.

Observations on the course:

The professors of Sanskrit and History curated relevant and fascinating topics for the upliftment of the students. The ethics and the values emphasised in the ancient Sanskrit texts like Vedas, Upanishads, Panchatantra, Hitopadesha, Ramayana, Mahabharata, as well as ancient Indian cultural traditions with respect to performing arts, music, cuisine and other aspects. The students were given a comprehensive view of ethics as expounded and clarified in classical Sanskrit literature, Indian culture and tradition, the values of the citizens, the social and cultural significance of practices, customs and how it ties to human character, values, ethics, society.

This historical and traditional perspective is tied to the current democratic republican polity, its values, its culture founded on the constitution which in turn draws on the rich cultural heritage of India, its customs, traditions and practices and welds them together into a documented whole which breathes life into the nation as it came into being in 1947.

Therefore, the other facet of this Add-on course concentrates on the fundamental rights and duties, other rights of the citizens and recent currents, the relationship between the citizen and the state, the true meaning of citizenship in contemporary India. Therefore, the different articles with respect to citizenship have been properly delineated. The acquisition of citizenship of India and the problems of dual citizenship have also been discussed.

Other particulars of the course:

Students from the Department of Sanskrit and the Department of History submitted their applications to the respective heads of the departments and then they were selected by the course co-ordinator and the course creators after sifting through the applications. A total of 40 students attended the course. The students were evaluated upon their performance in class and the tests conducted. The students all performed well, which is an indicator of their interest, commitment to the course and the learning they gained from it.

What the students gained from the course:

The students got introduced to an extensive, catholic array of classical Sanskrit literature which imparted to them knowledge about the philosophy and values of their ancient civilisation. They could connect directly with their ancient civilisation and its values. They learnt how to be good human beings as part of a community and how to be a good citizen in the nation-state, both categories not being mutually exclusive. They garnered a holistic knowhow about citizenship in the Indian state in its present form and how the contemporary state connects to the ancient state and the value system followed by the people of this land. The students were certainly enhanced intellectually and emotionally as individuals and as members of a group by this course for values have a cognitive and spiritual aspect to them. This course added value to the lives of the students, preparing them for their future as working citizens of a democracy established in ancient civilisational principals and ethics.
